Pre-School Training Program is Outlined

Granite City Optimists heard details on the recently announced pre-school training program for underprivileged children, "Project Head Start," which is slated to begin at six centers in Granite City, July 6 and continue through Aug. 23.

Plans for conducting the local phase of the nationwide local development program were discussed by Raymond Jones, acting principal of Froebert school, and administrator of the local program, who addressed an Optimist luncheon Thursday in the YMCA.

Jones reported that centers will be located at the Kirkpatrick Homes recreation hall, Logan, Mitchell, McKinley, Emerson and Washington grade schools.

The program will be financed with funds obtained by the newly-organized Madison County Economic Opportunity Commission, Jones said, and will be open to underprivileged children, five years of age who have not yet attended school, but are eligible to enter kindergarten next fall.

Those who qualify will attend classes, three hours each day, Monday through Friday, the administrator related. Enrollment will be limited to 15 children per class.

The emotional, physical and psychological development of the individual child will be emphasized in all facets of the program, Jones explained. Dental and physical examinations will be given shortly after classes begin and milk and crackers will be available to the youngsters at each session.

Excursions and field trips are being planned, "in an effort to expand the natural thirst for knowledge usually present in pupils of this age level," Jones said.

The teaching staff at each center will consist of one certified primary grade school teacher from the Granite City school system, who will be assisted by a teacher's aid. Presently, volunteers are being sought who are willing to contribute their time and efforts to the program. Persons wishing to assist are being asked to contact Jones.

All personnel working in the program will attend a special series of classes at SWIU, East St. Louis campus for one week beginning June 21. In the county-wide program, at least five nurses will be employed on a part-time basis for Project Head Start, he said. Included in the five is Mrs. Bea Pyle, a Granite City school nurse.

Administrators have been appointed for the various school districts by County School Superintendent R. L. Trampe, and Ray Ready, administrative assistant of the Alton school district, is serving as county coordinator.

Following the speaker, a brief business session was conducted by Optimist President Robert Brave and plans were completed for the annual installation dinner June 17 at Rusty's restaurant, Edwardsville. Those wishing to attend are to make reservations with Floyd T. Mitchell prior to June 14. Twenty members were present.

Prospectus Ready On Transportation Planning in Area

The Prospectus Committee of the East-West Gateway Coordinating Committee, composed of Mayor A. J. Cervantes of St. Louis, Mayor Alvin G. Fields of East St. Louis, President Paul T. Koenig of the St. Louis County League of Municipalities and President James Kruse of the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan Area Planning Commission, has prepared a comprehensive land use and transportation planning program proposed for the metropolitan area.

The committee announced satisfaction with progress that has been made. A draft prospectus will now be distributed to the full membership of the Gateway Coordinating Committee.

The prospectus outlines a work program to put the Illinois-Missouri Metropolitan Area in line with requirements of the 1962 Federal Highway Act. This act states that, to be eligible for federal highway funds after July 1, a metropolitan area of over 50,000 population must adopt a "continuing, comprehensive transportation planning process."

The prospectus is a joint effort of a technical committee representing several agencies within the metropolitan area that deal with land use and transportation, and the coordinating firm of Alan W. Voorhees & Associates of Washington, D.C.

The report itemizes in detail the technical studies and land use planning, the organization for initiating and carrying out a continuing program, the division of costs among the participating agencies and the staff elements for program development.

Rate 151 Complaints to go to District Highway Engineer

Rate property owners who will be boxed in or who will lose portions of their lots to Federal Aid Route 151, filed protests at R. H. Long, assistant district design engineer, for the state highway department, during a meeting Thursday evening at the Hungarian Hall. The complaints are to be relayed to the district engineer.

The meeting was arranged by Mayor Partney at the request of the West Granite property owners, and about 70 persons were in attendance. A number of questions pertained to property appraisals, and another meeting is to be arranged for the residents to confer with state highway department appraisers.

A majority of protests came from individuals whose homes will be on the west side of the new dual-lane highway. Clarence Brown, 2309 Independence drive, pointed out his children now have a seven-block commute to Washington school, but when the new highway is installed, the dual-lane highway will cut the 15 to 17 blocks and cross the dual highway at the grade level West 20th street intersection. Electric signal lights will be placed there.

Want Fence, More Outlets
The meeting channelled an effort by the residents to have the highway fenced off to prevent children from running onto it and also to provide additional alley and street outlets.

It was suggested the frontage road between the new highway and levee either be changed to go north to Rock rd., or that the proposed southern route, which will extend from the stranded portion of Independence drive to Cavaya street be extended further to West 20th street. It now is planned to end the road at Cavaya street, where traffic would be diverted west on Cavaya to Union street.

Many of the property owners asked why the highway had not been routed closer to the levee to avoid taking their property, but perhaps going through a portion of the Army Depot.

Long replied that the initial designers, H. W. Lochner & Co., Chicago, had set the route, pointing out it was the most economical and most direct.

No Immediate Construction
He added that while state funds have been appropriated for the highway, the right-of-way through Granite City has not yet been obtained and the construction may not be undertaken for as long as five years.

The 1965 construction for FA Route 151 will be limited to an overpass at the Illinois Terminal

Railroad spur serving the Chain of Rocks canal harbor. The overpass will be located immediately west of the A. O. Smith Corp. plant, Long explained. He added that he did not know when construction south of Niedringhaus avenue would be scheduled.

Those present were given an opportunity to inspect blueprints, showing the exact locations of the highway right-of-way and where turn-arounds would be located. Several complained they would be losing portions of their lots to the highway right-of-way, and then also have to give up portions in front for a street turn-around and in the rear for an alley turn-around.

Losing Fruit Trees
Mr. and Mrs. Russell Buckle, 2929 Cavaya street, who have a 100-foot lot, pointed out that in such a position and where turn-arounds would be in fruit trees and rose bushes. Buckle added that his home, which will be against the east side of the roadway, is often snowbound and he has to travel west to get to work. "I won't have a way out now when the drifts pile up on Leyden avenue as they always do every winter," he complained.

Long explained to persons with homes will be taken for the highway, or those who want to relocate because of the nearness of the roadway can buy one of the 11 remaining lots in the old quonset hut area owned by the city. He explained the city real estate developers so that the 50x125-foot lots can be sold to individuals.

SAFEGUARD YOUR HEALTH

A PUBLIC SERVICE OF THE ILLINOIS STATE MEDICAL SOCIETY

DON'T BE AFRAID OF ELECTROCARDIOGRAMS

Has your doctor's suggestion that you have an "ECG" left you terror-stricken?

If so, it shouldn't.

ECG—the abbreviation for electrocardiogram—is merely a way of tracing the activity of your heart electrically. In this tracing, he can tell a great deal about the activity of your heart:

- 1. If it is beating with a regular or irregular rhythm.
- 2. If it is beating too fast or too slow.
- 3. Where and how much it was damaged following a heart attack.
- 4. How the action of drugs—especially quinidine for restoring normal rhythm and digitalis for restoring normal speed—are affecting it.
- 5. Whether there is a strain on either side of it.
- 6. Silent Heart Attack.

How does the ECG reveal all of these secrets?

The answer lies in the action of the heart itself. When a person is at rest, the only muscular activity of any importance is the alternate contraction and expansion of the heart.

Like a large, throbbing transmitter, the heart sends electric current in waves all over the body. It is these waves that are picked up by pairs of small electrical conductors on the ECG and transmitted on a calibrated moving sheet to form an electrocardiogram.

Sent Leads Necessary

Usually the conductors—called leads—are connected to the forearm, left leg and chest near the heart.

Each series of waves makes an electrical record of the changes that take place within one beat of the heart.

Because only one wave may be abnormal in the presence of heart disease, more than one lead is necessary to make an accurate diagnosis.

Other Tests Advisable

Clear Issue Faces Illinois House

On Levee District Legislation

Now that the Illinois Senate has acted favorably on a series of bills drawn up by the Commission on Sanitary District Operations, state representatives from Madison and St. Clair counties and throughout Illinois have an opportunity to strike a powerful blow for good government. They can do this by adopting and sending to the governor the proposed new legislation affecting the East Side Levee & Sanitary District.

The Senate passed without objection Bill 1096, which requires legal publication of notices of public hearings on levee board construction and acquisition projects, and Bill 1094, which provides for election of trustees from majority and minority areas determined by assessed valuation, legal publication of bond issues, sale of bonds to the highest and best responsible bidders and competitive bidding on supplies and materials.

Senate Bill 1095, which passed 30-24 despite opposition from Senator Simon and Dixon, sets a procedure for dissolution of a sanitary district by referendum. Although effective reforms could result in dissolution becoming unnecessary, the past has been avoided through evasion of sound procedural rules. Citizens need some additional weapon at their disposal to encourage operation of the levee district in a manner serving the public interest.

The proposed laws are of great importance because they involve the issue of respect for government—including respect not only for a district but for the state which created it and decides its powers. Politics must not be allowed to cloud the clear-cut issue, which is whether a governmental agency is to be operated efficiently and fairly.

Long Series Of Civil Defense Exercises By Madison Staff

The natural disaster exercise conducted in Madison Saturday afternoon calls to mind the many drills held by the Madison civil defense staff, headed last by L. A. Friedman and then by Harry R. Johnson.

With emphasis on civil defense revived by the start of the Korean war in 1950, large-scale practices have continued on an annual basis. One in 1952 gained national recognition for the Quad-Cities through a film which showed the efforts of hundreds of volunteers and was used as a guide by other communities desiring to improve their preparedness.

Although shelters have been designated and stocked with emergency supplies, awesome increases in the potential devastation from enemy attack have led to a gradual change in CD emphasis. Because they would be ineffective, evacuation procedures have been virtually discarded. But to cope with a tornado or other disaster that could strike and cause thousands of deaths, providing helpful planning, training, coordination and manpower in such fields as first-aid, traffic control, communications and rescue work.

REV. W. L. SHOWERS

Our God has chosen to do some things through men. He needs men who will believe in Him and accept His Grace for salvation, service and stewardship.

God needs men who have been saved by His Grace to live exemplary lives. Some folks will never see the Bible because they never read it, unless they see it in the lives of those who have been blessed by its message.

God created man in His Own image, to be like Him, to be a man to form the body into which He breathed the breath of life and man became a living soul.

All other men have come through Adam, who was the first man to be created. He was created in the image of God, to be like Him, to be a man to form the body into which He breathed the breath of life and man became a living soul.

God wanted to develop a great King to rule over this nation. He found His man in the shepherd, David. He found his shepherd in the open sky. He found his shepherd in the open sky. He found his shepherd in the open sky.

Nameki Road Condemnations Deserve Prompt Action By The State And Courts

In view of the great need for the long-delayed widening of Nameki road, Quad-Cityans are hopeful that the Illinois Division of Highways, state attorney general and circuit court will provide condemnations currently preventing issuance of a call for construction bids.

Summer has traditionally brought a lull in judicial processes, but it would be in the public interest if court officials and the state government "cleared the decks" of other matters and made a point of bringing the condemnation proceedings to a conclusion no later than the end of July. Even then, it would be mid-September or later before paving contracts could be awarded.

Increased public attention this year has resulted in significant progress, but seemingly endless red tape and paper work continue to bar actual work on the narrow, congested traffic artery. Each day that passes brings additional economic loss and inconvenience to Quad-Cityans.

Continued attention by citizens will be vital during the coming weeks. It appears now that both the spring and summer will go by without Nameki road being widened; the fall must not be lost as well.

Justified Increase In Madison County Tax Rate

Support by both the County Problems Commission and the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois indicates the wisdom of legislation which would permit Madison county and certain other hard-pressed counties to add a cent to their general tax rate for 1965 and a second cent in subsequent years. The problem stems from complex rate limit laws and rulings in the past.

Passed last week by the Senate, the proposal deserves approval in the Illinois House, where its number is Bill 1446.

Drive carefully and enjoy all of 1965.

Another Progressive Step By Eagle Park Residents

Installation of drainage pipe and culverts along Carver street to alleviate stormwater flooding marks another progressive step spearheaded by the Eagle Park Improvement Association.

Previous accomplishments have included extension of water service and street lights to the neighborhood.

The project to divert runoff water to Horseshoe Lake, carried out cooperatively by property owners and the Village of Eagle Park highway department, will make streets and driveways usable at all times—an improvement worthy of study in other sections of Eagle Park.

Some self-made men should deny it.

Telephone Base Rate Area Growing With Quad-Cities

Elimination of a mileage charge in northern and eastern parts of the Quad-City area this summer is expected to result in identical telephone rate schedules for all local residents.

The expansion of the old base rate area recognizes growth in the Quad-City area and the fact that this is in essence a single community.

The revision to be filed this week with the Illinois Commerce Commission conforms to plans already developed in connection with establishment of a new telephone exchange building located on Pontoon road near Highway 111, which will be placed in use this fall. Regardless of which exchange serves them, Quad-Cityans can look forward to continued efficient service.

SEPARATE BALLOTS IN ILLINOIS

SEN. E. B. GORE, Republican of Peoria, has a proposal which would separate the ballots in Illinois into federal offices, state offices and local offices. The aim is simply to avoid the confusion where an extremely popular candidate for president sweeps all other offices in along with him—or the other way around.

The danger is the same for both parties. In 1956, obviously the Democrats would have carried the governorship when President Eisenhower won by more than 800,000 and Governor "Pat" McClellan was re-elected by slightly more than 30,000.

Percy Might Have Won

In 1964, the same might have been true in reverse, although the difference in votes between the candidates for governor and president was not nearly so great.

Traffic, Trash to be Topics

GC Council Meets Tonight After Two-Week Layoff

Granite City council members are anticipating another busy session at tonight's 8 o'clock meeting after a two-week layoff. Pending action on a $122,745-a-year garbage and trash collection contract along with reports on the snags hit in the east, a traffic safety study and additional appointments by a Mayor Partney.

The mayor said he plans to confer with state highway and automobile club traffic safety engineers this week for an off-the-cuff inspection of the numerous traffic controls in the city. "I'll submit a report to the council," Partney said.

Two weeks ago the council proposed a study of all traffic controls be made in the vicinity of the city's major thoroughfares before school sessions open next fall.

Partney also said he may have a report for the council this evening on the proposed special census. A block-by-block count of all inhabitants is proposed so that the city's voting precincts and wards can be re-aligned to equalize population prior to the 1967 city election.

A new contract for garbage-trash collection still is pending. It was placed on first reading May 24 by a vote of 10-to-6. The city is quitting LaMear-United Disposal Co., St. Louis, in favor of National Disposal Co., Barrington, Ill. LaMear currently has a $147,500 a year contract with the city that expires in July. It failed to submit a bid in March, but since made a $102,500 proposal, which was below the $122,745 bid by National.

Partney again declined to give any advance announcement of appointments he will be making. The mayor and Alderman Konn are expected to report on a meeting held Thursday night with residents of the Fifth Ward on the routing of Federal Aid Route 151 (The Great River Road) through the city. A state highway design engineer was present. The property owners seek additional outlets for streets and alleys and fencing along the dual highway.

Tickets on Sale for Ibsen's Drama Here

Henrick Ibsen's "An Enemy of The People" will be given by The Bishop's Company at Niedringhaus Memorial Methodist Church Monday June 14 at 8 p.m.

Ibsen's drama, adapted for the Company by Gary Hoelscher, takes place in a small Norwegian village which looks forward to new health and wealth because of the natural hot springs that it has developed. Conflict arises when Thomas Stockman, medical officer of the town, discovers that the springs are contaminated and takes the news to his brother, Peter, who is mayor. The mayor commands his brother to keep quiet about the discovery, fearing a financial setback for the town. The two brothers draw sides and in a climatic debate, Thomas is declared an enemy of the people by the very citizens he had tried to save and lead to a life of integrity. Thomas is tempted to run away but realizes that with the help of God, he will stay and fight evil and do everything in his power to make this a better world.

The Bishop's Company, internationally known touring group and a unique organization specializing in drama-in-the-church, has presented over 6000 productions in a 12-year touring record covering more than a million miles.

The Company will appear under the sponsorship of Niedringhaus Church and its minister, Rev. R. Paul Sims. Tickets are available in the church office at $1 each, or they may be purchased from members of the Concess Class.

More of the Cave's Legends

JOHN W. ALLEN
Southern Illinois University

An earlier article told briefly about Samuel Mason before he came to the river cave in present day Hardin county, Illinois, and established a robbery lair in 1797. Before continuing his story, it might be well to know something of the name of man he was. We are told that he was more than six feet tall and weighed two hundred pounds. He was a healthy, husky, attractive man, friendly and dignified, a capable leader.

A few years after the close of the Revolutionary War he left his home near the present city of Wheeling, W. Va., and moved to eastern Tennessee. There, with out permission, he occupied an empty house on land owned by John Sevier. When it became rumored that he was the leader of a group that stole from the cabins of Negroes while they were at church, Sevier told him to move. He promptly did so.

Mason's reputation continued to slip badly. He or his associates beat a Captain John Dunn whom they accused of talking too frankly. It apparently was their intent to beat the captain to death, but he lived to become Mason's bitterest enemy. About the same time Mason's men severely beat Judge Hugh Knox of Henderson, Ky., seemingly to intimidate him. These actions brought Mason into disrepute and forced him to leave the vicinity. He moved from place to place.

Reached Cave in 1797
In 1797 he settled at the cave and openly began a career of crime that ended in his death seven years later. Robbery was Mason's main objective. Killing was done only when necessary. Cave-in-Rock remained his headquarters during the greater part of 1797.

A new field awaited Mason. The day of the riverboat had dawned and such outlaws as him, mercenary, likewise those robbing them. Mason's reputation as a river pirate spread. To add such publicity, Mason is said to have changed his name to Wilson and to have erected a new sign at the cave. This time it said "Wilson's liquor Vault and House of Entertainment." A slightly different spelling also came, Cave-In-Rock.

From their station above the cave, "Mason's men kept a sharp lookout for flatboats coming down the river and invited them to land at the cave. Here it was a common practice to take possession of the boat and kill the crew if it was necessary.

In some cases where a hired crew was carrying the cargo down river for an absentee owner, the men were "persuaded" to continue down river with Mason's men "protecting" them.

Some crewmen who "cooperated" were rewarded with part of the proceeds.

Double Robbery System

At about the same time Mason began systematically robbing travelers on the Natchez Trace, a wilderness trail leading from Natchez on the Mississippi to Nashville, Tenn., and onward toward Louisville, Ky. This road was frequently used on the return journey by the men who had shipped goods down the river and had sold both the boat and cargo. Employing this method, Mason had two opportunities for robbery.

If a down stream flatboat escaped the snare at Cave-in-Rock, Mason marked the owners for robbery when they returned over the trail. In some cases Mason seemingly preferred that the boatmen be permitted to pass down river unmolested and be robbed as they returned with their money over the Natchez Trace.

In January 1803, Mason and his associates, later known as Shelton, were in New Madrid, Mo., then in Spanish control. It is to be noted that Mason's associates had no knowledge of the identity of his associate, since they had not operated in the Cave-in-Rock vicinity at the time. For some reason they were arrested. They were taken down river and were sought by the Spanish governor there. It was not proved that they had committed any crime in Spanish Territory. They were, therefore, surrendered to the American authorities from whom they soon escaped. Mason's escape was on March 26, 1803.

They seemed to have teamed up after this incident, and began another series of crimes along the Trace and were sought continually for the reward being offered for them. According to the most reliable report, Shelton and a man named May killed Mason on July 25 or 26, 1804, for the offered reward.

Air Pollution Unit Seeks Appointment Of Meteorologist

Assignment of a full-time air pollution meteorologist for the area will be requested by the executive committee of the Interstate Air Pollution Study, according to a decision reached by the committee in a meeting in East St. Louis Thursday.

The committee said that such a man is needed for the area for several reasons, including the forecasting of air pollution potentials for the region. Such a service is one of the goals of the Interstate study.

George Brando, head of the St. Louis weather bureau, was requested last February to consider the matter, but he said at that time that it would take six months to two years to develop a reliable system of air pollution forecasting, even if necessary funds were available.

The group elected H. C. Mitchell, director of Environmental Health of the St. Louis County Health Department as chairman of the committee to succeed Jack Sailer of the United Public Health Service who will be transferred to Cincinnati Aug. 26.

Robert R. French of Springfield, Ill., chief of the Bureau of Air Pollution Control of the Illinois Division of Health, was elected co-chairman. The committee's final report, including recommendations for an air resources management plan and for air quality standards for control legislation, is expected to be completed by the end of the year.
